AlgeriaFrance's Undeclared War*

Martin Evans, University of Portsmouth

The first full account for a generation of the war against French colonialism in Algeria, setting out the long-term causes of the war from the French occupation of Algeria in 1830 onwards and drawing upon previously classified archival sources and a wealth of new oral testimony to underline the tragic conflict of values between the French governments of the 1950s and the Algerian nationalists who they perceived as a feudal and religiously fanatical historical anachronism.

Famine and Foreigners: Ethiopia Since Live Aid

Peter Gill

'Excellent.'

William Easterly, New York Review of Books

'A thoughtful, well-informed and detached account.'

Michael Holman, Literary Review

This book tells the story of Ethiopia, the place, the people, and the westerners that tried to help. The first journalist to reach the centre of the famine in 1984, Peter Gill draws on interviews with villagers, politicians, aid workers, and economists and asks whether any of the rich world's big promises on aid and Africa are being fulfilled.

Trans-Saharan Africa in World History

Ralph Austen, Emeritus, University of Chicago

During the heyday of camel caravan traffic—from the eighth century CE arrival of Islam in North Africa to the early twentieth-century building of European colonial railroads that linked the Sudan with the Atlantic—the Sahara was one of the world's great commercial highways, bringing gold, slaves, and other commodities northward and sending both manufactured goods and Mediterranean culture southward into the Sudan. Historian Ralph A. Austen here tells the remarkable story of an African world that grew out of more than one thousand years of trans-Saharan trading.

Sharpeville

An Apartheid Massacre and its Consequences

Tom Lodge, University of Limerick

The Sharpeville Massacre of 20 March 1960 signalled the start of armed resistance in South Africa, and prompted worldwide condemnation of South Africa's Apartheid policies. The events at Sharpeville deeply affected the attitudes of both black and white and provided a major stimulus to the development of an international 'Anti-Apartheid' movement. In Sharpeville, Tom Lodge explains how and why the Massacre occurred, looking at the social and political background to the events of March 1960, as well as the sequence of events that prompted the shootings themselves. He then broadens his focus to explain the long-term consequences of the shootings, explaining how they affected South African politics over the following decades, both domestically and also in the country's relationship with the rest of the world.

The Strange Alchemy of Life and Law

Albie Sachs, formerly a Justice of the Constitutional Court of South Africa

'Dazzlingly honest and original mind.'

Nadine Gordimer, Times Literary Supplement

Albie Sachs gives an intimate account of his extraordinary life and work as a judge in South Africa. Mixing autobiography with reflections on his major cases and the role of law in achieving social justice, Sachs offers a rare glimpse into the workings of the judicial mind and a unique perspective on modern South African history.

The Akan Diaspora in the Americas

Kwasi Konadu, City University of New York

Konadu calls attention to the historic formation of Akan culture in West Africa and its reach into the Americas. He examines the Akan experience in Guyana, Jamaica, Antigua, Barbados, former Danish and Dutch colonies, and North America, and how those early experiences foreground the contemporary engagement and movement of diasporic Africans and Akan people between Ghana and North America.

Frontiers of Violence in North-East Africa

Genealogies of Conflict since c. 1800

Richard J. Reid, University of London

Richard Reid offers an historical analysis of violent conflict in northeast Africa through the nineteenth and twentieth centuries, and argues that this warfare was not solely the product of modern political 'failure', but rather has its roots in a network of frontier zones which are both violent and creative.
