EU Law: Text, Cases, and Materials

FIFTH EDITION

Paul Craig, Professor of English Law, St John's College, Oxford, and Gráinne de Búrca, Professor of Law, Harvard Law School, Harvard University

- Written by leading scholars on European Law, based at Oxford and Harvard respectively, EU Law: Text, Cases, and Materials provides an insightful analysis of the subject by experts in the field.
- Fully updated in the light of the Treaty of Lisbon, the fifth edition gives the reader a clear understanding of the way in which the Treaty works, its impact on the Institutions of the European Union, and the effects on substantive areas of European Law.
- Succinct and clear commentary sets out the law, illuminates the accompanying materials, and delivers critical and contextual analysis of all the legal and political aspects of EU law and policy.
- Well-designed learning features to guide the reader through each topic, including concise 'central issues,' 'summaries' and helpful 'conclusions' in each chapter.

The fifth edition of EU Law: Text, Cases, and Materials provides clear and insightful analysis of European Law accompanied by carefully chosen extracts from a range of materials. This edition looks in detail at the way in which the Treaty of Lisbon has radically changed both the institutional and substantive law of the European Union.

The Lisbon Treaty
Law, Politics, and Treaty Reform

Paul Craig, Professor of English Law, St John's College, Oxford

The Lisbon Treaty reformed the foundations of the European Union and marked the culmination of a process of Treaty reform that began after the Treaty of Nice and spanned almost a decade. This book addresses the main innovations made by the new Treaty, examining its legal and political consequences in a reformed EU. The book is organized thematically around the principal issues that occupied those engaged in the reforms over the last decade. The chapters include analysis of the reform process itself and the political forces that shaped the relevant provisions of the Lisbon Treaty.

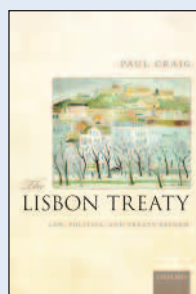

The book contains detailed analysis of the relevant legal changes made by the Lisbon Treaty on each topic covered. This legal analysis is informed by broader literature from related disciplines, such as political science and international relations, since it is only by doing so that it is possible fully to understand the legal implications of the new provisions dealing with issues such as the inter-institutional division of power within the EU, the distribution of competence, the hierarchy of legal acts and the Charter of Rights.

The book addresses the political and legal implications of the Treaty provisions, and the discussion is set against the background of the pre-existing legal and political regime, aiding a full understanding of the effect of the new rules contained in the Lisbon Treaty.

The Regimes of European Integration
Constructing Governance of the Single Market

Shawn Donnelly, Assistant Professor of European Economic Governance at the University of Twente

'The attention paid by Donnelly to national norms concerning public policy, in particular the respective role of the state and the private sector in the economy, the legitimate objectives to be pursued by regulation is refreshing and provides a new take on this literature... The book is a fine piece of work, mastering three complex policy areas and reminding the readers of the importance of member states and their normative views in the construction of EU regimes.'

The Emergence of EU Contract Law*Exploring Europeanization

Lucinda Miller, Senior Lecturer, Faculty of Laws, University College London

'This is an excellent book on a highly topical subject. Very well-informed, it sets recent developments in European contract law in their proper context, provides perceptive and enjoyable argumentation on the pros and cons of further Europeanisation (not least on the "cultural" cons) and points to an appealing and realistic way forward.'

Eric Clive, Professor of Law, Edinburgh Law School

The emergence of a pan-European contract law is one of the most significant legal developments in Europe today. The Emergence of EU Contract Law: Exploring Europeanization examines the origins of the discipline and its subsequent evolution. It brings the discussion up-to-date with full analysis of the debate on the Common Frame of Reference and the future that this ambiguous instrument may have in the contemporary European legal framework.

One of the central themes of the book is exploration of the multi-level, open architecture of the EU legal order, and the implications of that architecture for the EU's private law programme. The analysis demonstrates that the key to understanding European contract law in the 21st century lies in adopting a perspective and mechanisms suitable for a legal order populated by multiple sources of private law. Legal pluralism is offered as a theoretical construct with the capacity to shape the future of European private law, shifting the analytical spotlight beyond the traditional, centralized, legislative means of regulation. In so doing, softer mechanisms are introduced for the governance of contract law; mechanisms that enable coordination between the different sites at which contract law operates. This reorientation in thinking about European contract law, indeed about Europeanization itself, enables the inevitable diversity and pluralism that is a feature of multi-level Europe to be captured within a framework that maximizes the opportunities for mutual learning and exchange across private law sites.

Market Integration and Public Services in the European Union

Edited by Marise Cremona, Professor of European Law at the European University Institute, Florence

This collection offers a timely analysis of the most pressing current issues relating to market integration and the provision of public services in the EU. It begins by addressing underlying, systemic questions of the relation between public services and markets, and services of two major branches of EU law—state aids and public procurement. Finally, the volume examines two public service sectors where Union law has impacted in very different ways—public services, media and health services.
