Competition Litigation: UK Practice and Procedure 2010/2011

By Mark Brealey QC and Nicholas Green QC,
Brick Court Chambers

- Hands-on practical guidance
- Unique insight based on vast experience
- The first work to contain guidance on the implication of Rome II
- The first work to offer guidance on impact of recent Norris case on criminal aspects of competition law

Competition Litigation is the new definitive work on competition law court practice in the UK. Written and edited by a team from leading competition set Brick Court Chambers, this book draws upon the vast collective experience of the authors and offers unprecedented breadth of commentary and depth of expert insight into court procedure, focussing particularly on the High Court and the Competition Appeals Tribunal.

The work covers all aspects of competition case work, including commencement of proceedings, jurisdiction, statement of case, disclosure, evidential issues, privilege and confidentiality, hearings, intervention, and remedies amongst others. It takes a unique hands-on approach to the subject, offering extensive practical guidance that goes beyond the scope of typical civil procedure books.

The book will be an essential companion for practitioners specialising in contentious competition law, as well as for those in the judiciary and the regulatory authorities themselves. It will also be the first port of call for commercial litigators who need to understand the specific demands and peculiarities of competition litigation.

Brick Court Chambers

Between them, the competition barristers at Brick Court have been involved in the majority of recent competition law cases before the Courts of England and Wales and the Competition Appeal Tribunal; and are considered by Chambers & Partners 2009 as “an outstanding team of ...lawyers who are specialists in all aspects of competition litigation.” The General Editors are Nicholas Green QC and Mark Brealey QC, both of whom have considerable experience and knowledge of all aspects of UK and EU competition law and regularly appear before the Courts of England and Wales, the Competition Appeal Tribunal, and the European Court of Justice of the European Communities.

Bellamy & Child: European Community Law of Competition

Sixth Edition

Peter Roth, QC, Barrister, Monckton Chambers, Visiting Professor, King's College, London and Chairman of the Competition Law Association, and Vivien Rose, Barrister, member of the Government Legal Service and Chairman, Competition Appeal Tribunal

- Fully updated new edition of a leading practitioner work on EC Competition law, famous for its precise statement of legal principles and exhaustive citation of judicial and legislative authorities
- Major new chapter on Market Definition
- Increased coverage of national decisions and the role of Member States post-modernisation
- Pack now includes the 2009 materials volume which contains all the relevant legislation with cross-references to the coverage in the commentary

This eminent and authoritative work has been fully updated to encompass the major changes in substantive law, enforcement procedures and case law since the last edition.

Examining the impact of modernisation on enforcement by national authorities and courts, coverage of national decisions post-modernisation is collated from information using a network of key correspondents in the Member States. Increased coverage of the new system has been introduced in particular within the chapter on the Community Context and the Role of Member States.

There is a major new chapter on Market Definition, while coverage of Sectoral regimes and their relationship with competition law is consolidated into a single chapter which focuses in particular upon agriculture, energy, insurance, telecommunications, and transport.

EC Competition Law and Economics

Damien Geradin, Professor of Competition Law and Economics at Tilburg University, member of TILEC, Jorge Padilla, managing director at LECC, Nicolas Petit, Professor of competition law and Economics at the University of Liège.

This is the first EC competition law treatise that fully integrates economic reasoning in its treatment of the decisional practice of the European Commission and the case-law of the European Court of Justice. This integration has become increasingly important in competition law, as the European Commission and national competition authorities are increasingly moving away from a legalistic analysis of a firm's conduct to an effect-based analysis of such conduct. Most competition cases today involve teams composed of lawyers and industrial organisation economists.

Ensuring a genuinely integrated approach to legal and economic analysis, this major new work is written by a team combining the widely recognised expertise of two competition law professors and a prominent economic consultant.

This book will appeal to practitioners and academics specialising in competition law but will also be of interest to economists working in the field and non specialist commercial practitioners.

European Community Law of State Aid

Kelyn Bacon, Barrister, Brick Court Chambers

- The most comprehensive and accessible analysis of of the law of state aid in the EC
- Encompasses substantive changes taking place under the EC's State Aids Action Plan and covers procedures for notification to the Commission and judicial remedies in the European Courts

“In short, European Community Law of State Aid is a thoroughly researched, well-presented, bang up-to-date and user-friendly treatise on a difficult subject. Quite simply, it contains everything one needs to know about the law and practice relating to State aid. No practitioner advising in this area and no-one else who is interested in the subject-matter can afford not to have a copy.”

Sir Gerald Barling, President of the Competition Appeal Tribunal

This comprehensive work for practitioners on the Law of State Aid in the European Community covers the background and development of EC State Aid law, and the concept of State Aid. It also sets out the role of national courts in the enforcement of State Aid rules, and the actual application of various types of aid, including regional aids, horizontal aids and aids to specific industry sectors.

Damages Claims for the Infringement of Competition Law

By Paolisa Nebbia, Italian Competition Authority

This book addresses the Commission's White Paper on damages claims for the infringement of competition law by combining solid analysis with a practical approach; it systematically examines points raised by the Commission, including questions that the White Paper does not address.

Divided into two parts, the first focuses on the relevant Community acquis by adopting a broader approach than the White Paper. While the White Paper mainly discusses the case-law on State liability and unjust enrichment, this book examines all Community measures that may be relevant to a damages claims (whether brought by a consumer or not) such as those concerning fault and 'excusable errors', small claims, legal aid, alternative dispute resolution, as well as private international law instruments.

EC Competition Law in Technology Markets

Kevin Coates, DG Competition, European Commission, Brussels

EC Competition Law in Technology Markets takes a practical, integrated approach to competition law in the information, communication and media markets, otherwise known as the 'new economy'. It provides a coherent analysis of these various markets by addressing issues, and the ensuing legal problems, that are common to them. These include; high fixed costs, the importance of intellectual property and standards, the impact of interoperability, and the prevalence of the network effect.

The book considers how EC competition rules interact with regulation, intellectual property law and data protection rules, and goes on to analyse the application of competition rules in four fields; communications networks, industrial intellectual property, creative intellectual property, and electronic commerce and services. The book charts a clear path through this complex interaction of rules, and provides the competition law practitioner with the necessary tools to advise on legal problems in these sectors.
