In Search of the Black Fantastic

Politics and Popular Culture in the Post-Civil Rights Era

Richard Iton, University of Toronto

Richard Iton shows in this provocative and insightful volume that despite the changes brought about by the civil rights movement, and contrary to the wishes of those committed to narrower conceptions of politics, black artists have continued to play a significant role in the making and maintenance of critical social spaces. Iton offers an original portrait of the relationship between popular culture and institutionalized politics. With an emphasis on questions of class, gender and sexuality—and diaspora and coloniality—the author also illustrates how creative artists destabilize modern notions of the proper location of politics, and politics itself.

Four Parts, No Waiting

A Social History of American Barbershop Quartet

Gage Averill, University of Toronto

Four Parts, No Waiting investigates the role that vernacular, barbershop-style close harmony has played in American musical history, in American life, and in the American imagination. Starting with a discussion of the first craze for Austrian four-part close harmony in the 1830s, Averill traces the popularity of this musical form in minstrel shows, black recreational singing, vaudeville, early recordings, and in the barbershop revival of the 1930s. In his exploration of barbershop, Averill uncovers a rich musical tradition—a hybrid of black and white cultural forms, practiced by amateurs, and part of a mythologized vision of small-town American life.

Polkability

How the Goose Island Ramblers Redefined American Folk Music

James Leary, University of Wisconsin-Madison

While the Goose Island Ramblers are a remarkable group, they are entirely representative of the many bands who, from the 1920s through the 90s have synthesised an array of 'foreign', 'American' folk, popular, and hillbilly musical strains to entertain rural, small town, working class audiences throughout the mid-west.

Dangdut Stories

A Social and Musical History of Indonesia's Most Popular Music

Andrew N. Weintraub,
University of Pittsburgh

A keen critic of culture in modern Indonesia, Andrew N. Weintraub shows how a genre of Indonesian music called dangdut evolved from a debased form of urban popular music to a prominent role in Indonesian cultural politics and the commercial music industry. Dangdut Stories is a social and musical history of dangdut within a range of broader narratives about class, gender, ethnicity, and nation in post-independence Indonesia (1945–present).

Embodying Mexico

Tourism, Nationalism, and Performance

Ruth Hellier-Tinoco, University of Winchester

Exploring the role of performance in tourist and nationalist contexts, Embodying Mexico analyses the making of icons in twentieth-century Mexico, as local dance, music, and ritual practices are transformed into national and global spectacles. Drawing on extensive ethnographic, archival, and participatory experience this interdisciplinary study makes an important contribution to an understanding of Mexican cultural politics.

Saints and Singers

Sufi Music in the Indus Valley

Peter Pannke

The saints and singers of Pakistan tell the story of the travels and adventures of the human soul in a myriad different ways, so that it may not be out of place to call it Pakistan's soul music. Whereas Qawwali, the most popular genre, made a spectacular entrance into the world music arena, most of the other manifold—and often equally interesting—expressions of Sufi music are still very little known by the western audience.

Musical Renderings of the Philippine Nation

Christi-Anne Castro, University of Michigan

The first cultural history of the Philippines during the twentieth century, Musical Renderings of the Philippine Nation focuses on the relationships between music, performance, and ideologies of nation. Spanning the hundred years from the Filipino-American War to the 1998 Centennial celebration of the independence of the nation from Spain, the book has added emphasis on the period after World War II. Through both archival research and ethnographic fieldwork, Christi-Anne Castro reveals how individuals and groups negotiate with and contest the power of the Philippine state to define the nation as a modern and hybrid entity within a global community.
