

Music, Art, and Metaphysics

Jerrold Levinson, University of Maryland

This is a long-awaited reissue of Jerrold Levinson's 1990 book which gathers together the writings that made him a leading figure in contemporary aesthetics. These highly influential essays are essential reading for debates on the definition of art, the ontology of art, emotional response to art, expression in art, and the nature of art forms.

On Music

An Arabic critical edition and English translation of Epistle 5

Edited and translated by Owen Wright, School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London

This is the first critical edition of a fascinating medieval work on music, written in Iraq in the tenth century. It is accompanied by an English translation and full annotation. The Epistle examines not just the technical, scientific, and mathematical aspects of music, but its cosmic, psychological, and spiritual dimensions.

Antithetical Arts

On the Ancient Quarrel Between Literature and Music

Peter Kivy, Rutgers University

'clear, resourceful, spirited, and entertaining'

Paul Griffiths, Times Literary Supplement

Peter Kivy presents a fascinating critical examination of the two rival ways of understanding instrumental music. He argues against 'literary' interpretation in terms of representational or narrative content, and defends musical formalism. Along the way he discusses interpretations of a range of works in the canon of absolute music.

Empathy

Philosophical and Psychological Perspectives

Edited by Amy Coplan, California State University, Fullerton, and Peter Goldie, University of Manchester

This is a much-needed interdisciplinary investigation of empathy. Leading researchers from philosophy and psychology explore the role of empathy in our capacity to understand other people and predict what they think, feel, and do; the part it plays in our ethical responses to others; and its importance to our appreciation of art and fiction.

The Psychology of Music Performance Anxiety

Dianna Kenny, University of Sydney

Performance anxiety is a major problem for musicians—one that affects almost all musicians at some time in their lives, whether young or old, amateur or professional—irrespective of musical genre. In extreme cases performance anxiety has caused the early retirement of very talented musicians, while many others have resorted to problematic and heavy use of ‘beta-blockers’ or alcohol to help them cope with the pressures of performing. Music Performance Anxiety offers a comprehensive review of this problem covering both scientific research and the psychological interventions that can alleviate the problem.
