

Winner of the 2008 Inner Temple Book Prize

NEW IN PAPERBACK
Child Abuse

Law and Policy Across Boundaries

Laura Hoyano, Fellow & Tutor in Law, Wadham College, Oxford, and Caroline Keenan, Lecturer in Law, Queen's University Belfast

'Judges have described this as a "masterly book on a hugely important subject", "an inspiring achievement" and "an invaluable source of ideas and law, theory and practice", not only for practitioner and academic but for policy makers and indeed for all concerned with reform and administration of the law.'

Judges of the Inner Temple Book Prize 2008

Child abuse is often under the media spotlight—each new case reveals failings in the systems responsible for child protection and brings a new government response, muddying the legal and policy framework. This book offers an exhaustive analysis of the law and policy protecting children across 75 jurisdictions, with strong proposals for reform.

- Provides a comparative analysis of the law and policy framework across common law jurisdictions, notably the UK, the US, Canada, New Zealand and Australia
- Presents a coherent, holistic agenda for reforming the law, of great value to policy makers

978-0-19-957156-7, Paperback £44.95
September 2009, 1,080 pages

The Politics of Child Sexual Abuse

Emotion, Social Movements, and the State

Nancy Whittier, Professor of Sociology, Smith College

This book traces activism against child sexual abuse from its emergence in feminist anti-rape efforts, through the development of mainstream self-help and its entry into mass media and public policy. Examining the connections between feminism, therapeutic politics, and public policy, it analyzes the processes that shape social change.

978-0-19-532510-2, Hardback £16.99
October 2009, 272 pages, 2 black and white line illustrations, OUP USA

Older People in Law and Society

Jonathan Herring, Fellow in Law at Exeter College, University of Oxford

It is widely claimed that we are facing a 'demographic time bomb' with an increasing older population and a decreasing working population. On the whole there are three conflicting attitudes in society towards older people.

Firstly, there are those who see older people as a 'problem': how can we afford their care? Secondly, there are those who are concerned by the maltreatment of older people. Finally, there are those who argue that society is squandering the resources that older people can offer. These conflicting views of how to approach the 'problem' of older people are also reflected in the mixed response of the law. This book presents possible solutions to these problems and highlights the need not only to protect older people from abuse and poverty in order to ensure that they have a dignified old age, but also the need to empower older people to live their final years in an active and fulfilling way.

Table of Contents

1 Introduction	6 Older People and Financial issues
2 Ageism and Age Discrimination	7 Grandparenthood
3 Capacity, Incapacity, and Old Age	8 Older People and Healthcare
4 Carers	9 Inheritance
5 Elder Abuse	10 Conclusion

978-0-19-922902-4, Hardback £45.00
March 2009, 400 pages

NEW EDITION

Hayes and Williams' Family Law Principles, Policy, and Practice

THIRD EDITION

Stephen Gilmore, Lecturer in Family Law, King's College London, and Lisa Glennon, Lecturer in Law, Queen's University, Belfast

Stephen Gilmore and Lisa Glennon provide a timely update to this popular and highly readable account of family law. The book guides the reader carefully through the legislation and case law, explains the principles and policies informing the law, and carefully opens up the topics under discussion. The authors challenge the reader to question policy, legislation, and decisions made by the courts. They address the crucial social and political context that plays an important role in shaping this fascinating and dynamic area of law.

978-0-19-928236-4, Paperback £31.99
March 2010, 750 pages

LAW FROM OXFORD JOURNALS

International Journal of Law, Policy and the Family

Editors-in-Chief: John Eekelaar, University of Oxford and Robert Dingwall

The subject matter of the International Journal of Law, Policy and the Family comprises the following:

- Comparative analyses of family law
- Theoretical analyses of family law
- Sociological literature concerning the family and legal policy
- Social policy literature of special interest to law and the family
- Literature in related disciplines (medicine, psychology, demography)

Read a FREE Online Issue

1. Visit: http://services.oxfordjournals.org/my_account
2. Register as a new user by completing a brief online registration form
3. Select 'Access free sample issues' and choose International Journal of Law, Policy and the Family from the list

Published 3 times per year