

Contents

Abbreviations and Hindi Terms	xi
Table of Cases	xiii
Introduction	1
1. Context for Water Law and Water Sector Reforms	8
A. Socio-Economic Context	11
1. Access to water	11
2. Multiple uses of water	13
3. Poverty and water	17
B. Law and Policy Context	19
1. Context for water regulation	20
2. International water law context	21
3. International water policy context	25
4. National water law framework	27
C. Water Law for Poverty Eradication and Development in India	29
2. Evolution of Water Law	33
A. Water Law Framework	35
1. Basic structure of water law	36
B. Access to and Control over Water	38
1. Government control	39
2. Public trust	42
3. Individual access to and control over surface water	45
4. Access to and control over groundwater	47
5. Customary rules of access and control	49
C. Human Rights and Environmental Aspects	50
1. The human right to water	51
2. Sustainability and environment	56
D. Towards Water Law Reforms	61
3. From Water Sector Reforms to Law and Policy Reforms	63
A. Water Sector Reforms and Integrated Water Resources Management	64
B. Principles for Water Sector Reforms	67

1. Conservation	68
2. Water as a basic need	70
3. Water as an economic good	71
4. Individual property rights	74
5. Decentralization and user participation	75
6. Institutional reforms and privatization	78
C. Policy Framework Guiding Water Sector Reforms	81
1. Context and nature of international policy documents	82
2. Role of international financial institutions and their policies	87
3. National water policies	93
D. Towards Water Law Reforms	99
4. Evolving Water Law for the Twenty-First Century	103
A. Participation and Decentralization: Water User Association Legislation	104
1. Rationale for reforms	105
2. Evolution of participatory irrigation management regulation	108
3. The proposed reform model	110
4. Assessing participatory irrigation management laws	114
B. Institutional Reforms: Precursor for Further Changes	116
1. Emphasis on regulation	117
2. New water institutions	118
3. Institutional reforms in perspective	123
C. Groundwater Legislation: An Old Model in a New Context	126
1. The proposed reform model	127
2. Assessing reforms in the states	129
D. Contributions and Limitations of Ongoing Water Law Reforms	134
5. Regulation of Domestic and Livelihood Water	138
A. Policy Context for the Provision of Domestic Water	139
1. Evolution of the law and policy framework for the provision of domestic water	141
2. Urban areas policy framework	142
3. Framework for rural water supply	147
B. Recent Reforms for the Provision of Domestic Water in Rural Areas	148
1. The Swajal project and related initiatives	152
2. The Swajaldhara Guidelines	159
3. Swajaldhara in the eleventh plan	168
C. Drinking Water and the Realization of the Human Right to Water	170

6. Towards an Alternative Framework for Water Law Reforms	176
A. Beyond Existing Reforms	177
1. Limitation of existing water law and proposed reforms	178
2. Alternative bases for law reforms	181
B. New Framework for Access to and Control over Water	184
1. From public trust to common heritage status	185
2. Delinked access to water from land rights	189
3. Principles for water allocation	191
C. Broader Conception of the Human Right to Water	192
1. From drinking water to livelihood water	193
2. Disconnections	195
3. Free water	197
4. Links with other human rights	201
D. Rethinking Water Sector Principles	203
1. Equity	203
2. Environment and sustainability	209
3. Democratic decentralization	210
E. The Need for a Comprehensive Water Law Framework	214
7. Conclusion	218
Selected Bibliography and Notes	223
Index	233