

Name _____ Class _____

4 a If you had to choose (and you do!) which of the six links on page 77 in the pupil book do you think is the least important? Explain your answer.

6 The two quotes below are taken from the BBC World Service web site.

Well, a very strong commitment to the individual, a commitment to social cohesion and solidarity, a state that is neither too strong nor too weak, respect for human rights, tolerance, these are some basic principles. The rule of law of course, the idea that government must be bound by legal principles and that people must be treated equally."

What is a European – am I one?

The things which have happened over the last few years which make people feel European is a massive convergence of patterns of consumptions and lifestyles. So that Europeans are going to the same places for their holidays, consuming the same products, watching the same films, eating the same food.

(<http://www.bbc.co.uk/worldservice/theneweuropa/wk17.htm>). Which quote do you think is the most accurate? To what extent do you agree with the quotes? Give reasons for your answer.
