

Did you know?

The Oxford Mini School Dictionary sold more copies than J.K. Rowling, Anthony Horowitz and Eoin Colfer during the peak Back to School sales period last year.*

But we don't think they'll mind; after all, quotations from their books appear in our dictionaries!  We've taken thousands of citations from famous children's books to show key words in action and, as many of the books appear on the English syllabus or are part of their own reading, children are really able to relate to the examples we've given.

It's innovative features like these that make us the market leader—but we haven't let our worldwide reputation for quality make us lazy.

Whatever their needs, this handy guide to our dictionary range will help

Think Oxford.

* According to Nielsen Booktrack figures, the top-selling title by volume in the children's market in week ending September 5th was the Oxford School Mini Dictionary. It sold over 5,000 copies that week beating Artemis Fowl and The Lost Colony, Harry Potter and the Half-Blood Prince, and Stormbreaker to the number one position.

 The Oxford English Dictionary for Schools, the Oxford Primary Dictionary, the Junior Dictionary and the Junior Illustrated Dictionary all include citations from popular children's book
