Word dominoes

You can use compound words to make Word Dominoes. Here is a game that has been started.

Can you make any new dominoes to continue the game? You can go in any direction; and you can use the dictionary to help you find new words.

Here's how to play your own game of Word Dominoes. First make some blank dominoes out of card. If possible have a different colour for each player or team.

The first player (or team) finds a compound word and writes the two parts of it on one of the dominoes. The others, in turn, try to build out from the first domino, as in the example above.

If you cannot think of a word, you miss a turn. When nobody can think of any more words, the game ends, and the player or team with the most dominoes on the table wins.
